Essential oils for your success

support for a healthy respiratory tract

appetite stimulating

cooling effect during heat stress

Situation

Essential oils have been used to promote health and digestion for over 5,000 years. Heat stress, disease pressure and feed changes can all impair poultry performance, resulting in decreased feed intake, failure to obtain optimum physiological benefits from feed and potentially even respiratory problems. In such situations it is required to increase feed intake and boost animal well-being.

What is the solution?

Miarom L is a liquid complementary feed which comprises a special combination of various essential oils. Its long-lasting benefits are obtained from a synergistic, standardised combination of essential oils from thyme, anise, peppermint and eucalyptus, among others. Many years of international customer experience have shown that the use of Miarom L is beneficial in situations such as heat stress, wet litter problems, respiratory tract diseases and decreased performance or vaccination reactions. Furthermore, it improves the air quality and provides good and refreshing aroma in poultry houses.
